NEW—3RD EDITION!

Understanding Diversity: An Introduction

Fred L. Pincus and Bryan R. Ellis

Praise for the previous editions:

“This clear, concise book will provide students, scholars, and practitioners with a solid grounding in the complexity of diversity issues in our contemporary world.” —Mark Christian, Miami University

“A great teaching resource.... Tackles with conceptually rigorous and empirically grounded arguments all of the common questions, misconceptions, and challenges that students typically bring to the classroom.” —Eileen O’Brien, University of Richmond

“Accessible and thorough. Recommended as a textbook, or to anyone wanting a simple and clear introduction to the topic.” —Patricia Markley, Multicultural Review

What is diversity? How does prejudice show itself? What are the societal consequences of discrimination? Has anything changed over the past 50 years? These are just some of the questions addressed in Understanding Diversity, an introduction to the issues and controversies surrounding concepts of class, race, ethnicity, gender, sexual orientation, and disability.

This new edition has been thoroughly updated, as well as expanded to include a chapter on immigration, discussion of the varied impacts of the Covid-19 pandemic, and a section on gender diversity. The student-friendly structure of the book, however, remains unchanged. Accessible and practical, yet theoretically rich, Understanding Diversity is the perfect companion to the diversity anthology of your choice.

Fred L. Pincus is professor emeritus of sociology at the University of Maryland Baltimore County. Bryan R. Ellis is senior lecturer in the Irvin D. Reid Honors College at Wayne State University.

CHOICE OUTSTANDING ACADEMIC BOOK

Disability and Identity: Negotiating Self in a Changing Society

Rosalyn Benjamin Darling

“An important step forward.... This book is a fascinating read for anyone interested in identity theory or disability studies.”

—Christopher Johnstone,
American Journal of Sociology

“A foundational work for those who wish to explore this often-misunderstood topic.... Highly recommended.” —Choice

“Clear and comprehensive.... This valuable book demonstrates that disability is neither so simple, nor so negative, as most believe.”

—Adrienne Asch,
Yeshiva University

Rosalyn Darling offers a sweeping examination of disability identity, tracing its history and parsing the shifting forces that have shaped individual and societal understandings of ability and impairment across time.

Darling focuses on the relationship between societal views and the self-conceptions of people with mental and physical impairments. She also illuminates the impact of the disability rights movement, life-course dynamics, and race and gender in creating a diversity of disability identities. Her seminal work reveals the remarkable resilience of individuals in the face of profound social and material barriers, at the same time that it enhances our understanding of the construction and experience of “difference” in our changing society.

Rosalyn Benjamin Darling is professor emerita of sociology at Indiana University of Pennsylvania.

Introducing Disability Studies

Ronald J. Berger and Loren E. Wilbers

Praise for the 1st edition:

“A well-written, accessible, and well-rounded introduction to disability studies for all levels of education. Readers will find excellent sociological grounding of the historical, cultural, and legal factors that inform our understanding of disability and ableism.”

—Christina Papadimitriou, Sociology of Disabilities

“A welcome, accessible introduction to the growing field of disability studies.”

—Michelle Jarman, Disability Studies Quarterly

“Offer[s] a much-needed perspective to balance negative socially constructed opinions regarding disability.” —Jane Crawford, International Journal of Disability, Development, and Education

The new edition of this acclaimed text is an up-to-date introduction to the key themes, research, and controversies in disability studies.

The authors’ innovative approach offers thorough coverage of:

- diverse theoretical perspectives
- historical context, from ancient times to the present
- the impact of disability throughout the life course
- a range of physical, sensory, and cognitive impairments
- the place of disability in popular culture
- ethical issues, such as genetic selection and physician-assisted suicide

While giving prominence to the voices of individuals, they provide a solid foundation for making sense of disability not only as a personal experience, but also as a social phenomenon.

Ronald J. Berger is professor emeritus of sociology at the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater (UWW). Loren E. Wilbers is assistant professor of sociology and coordinator of the Family, Health, and Disability Studies Program at UWW.

Black Men on the Blacktop: Basketball and the Politics of Race

A. Rafik Mohamed

“[An] exceptional analysis of the intersections of sport, racism, and everyday resistance in contemporary America.... rich and rewarding.”

—Douglas Hartmann, American Journal of Sociology

“In this fine exploration of the political, social, and cultural dynamics of pickup basketball, Mohamed blends his gifts as a scholar with keen observational skills and his passion and experience as a longtime pickup basketball player himself.... [A] compelling volume.”—Choice

“A fascinating read.... Mohamed’s Black Men on the Blacktop represents a critical contribution to the literature of sport sociology.” —Bruce Lee Hazelwood, International Review for the Sociology of Sport

What is it about basketball that makes it “the black man’s game”? And what about pickup basketball in particular: can it tell us something about the state of blackness in the United States?

Reflecting on these questions, Rafik Mohamed presents pickup games as a text of the political, social, and economic struggles of African American men. In the process, he tells a story about race in its peculiarly American context, and about how the politics of race—and resistance—are mediated through sports.

A. Rafik Mohamed is professor of sociology and dean of the College of Social and Behavioral Sciences at California State University San Bernardino.

The Borders of Race: Patrolling “Multiracial” Identities

Melinda Mills

“We have much [for which] to thank Melinda Mills and her exploration of the borders of race and multiracial identities.”

—Rodney Coates,
American Journal of Sociology

“Valuable for classroom use.... Race and racial identity are clear and obscure simultaneously, always for certain, yet always questionable—the ‘What are you?’ that the racially ambiguous, among others, learn to anticipate. Mills has a ready phrase, equally loaded, to return with—‘Why do you want to know?’ This ‘so what?’ question is at the heart of this book.”

—Sarah Gatson,
Contemporary Sociology

Who is “multiracial”? And who decides? Addressing these two fundamental questions, Melinda Mills builds on the work of Heather Dalmage to explore the phenomenon—and consequences—of racial border patrolling by strangers, family members, friends, and even multiracial people themselves.

Melinda Mills is associate professor of women’s and gender studies, sociology, and anthropology at Castleton University.

Undocumented Latino Youth: Navigating Their Worlds

Marisol Clark-Ibáñez

“A must read.... Provides compelling examples of resilience, struggle, and activism.” —Gilda L. Ochoa, Pomona College “Essential.... Sheds light on how the racist implementation of immigration policies trickles down to shape the lives of children and young people in and out of school.”

—Leisy J. Abrego, University of California, Los Angeles

Though often overlooked in heated debates, nearly 1.8 million undocumented immigrants are under the age of 18. How do immigration policies shape the lives of these young people? How do local and state laws that are seemingly unrelated to undocumented communities negatively affect them? Marisol Clark-Ibáñez delivers an intimate look at growing up as an undocumented Latino immigrant, analyzing the social and legal dynamics that shape everyday life in and out of school.

Marisol Clark-Ibáñez is associate professor of sociology at California State University, San Marcos.

Making a Life in Multiethnic Miami: Immigration and the Rise of a Global City

Elizabeth M. Aranda, Sallie Hughes, and Elena Sabogal

“Reveals the ethnic and social complexity underlying superficial images.... Making a Life in Multiethnic Miami represents an important contribution to our understanding of the growing phenomenon of transnationalism for individuals, families, and entire communities.”

—Ronald J. Angel, Ethnic and Racial Studies

“A methodologically rich and theoretically sophisticated study that vividly contextualizes modern processes of migration and immigrant incorporation.”

—Maria Aysa-Lastra, Contemporary Sociology

“A groundbreaking [book].... Through its detailed analysis of the US city that includes the largest fraction of foreign-born people among its residents, Making a Life in Multiethnic Miami offers readers a glimpse into the future.”

—Steven J. Gold, Social Forces

With more than a million immigrants from Latin America and the Caribbean, Miami, Florida, boasts the highest proportion of foreign-born residents of any US city. Charting the rise of Miami as a global city, Elizabeth Aranda, Sallie Hughes, and Elena Sabogal provide a panoramic study of the changing dynamics of the immigration experience.

The authors move easily between an analysis of global currents and personal narratives, examining the many factors that shape the decision to emigrate and the challenges faced in making a new home. Offering a wealth of new insights, their work demonstrates why Miami is such an exceptional laboratory for studying the social forces and local effects of globalization on the ground.

Elizabeth M. Aranda is professor of sociology at the University of South Florida. Sallie Hughes is associate professor of journalism and Latin American studies at the University of Miami. Elena Sabogal is associate professor of women's and gender studies at William Paterson University of New Jersey.

Puerto Ricans in the United States: A Contemporary Portrait

Edna Acosta-Belén and Carlos E. Santiago

Praise for the previous edition
(a Choice Outstanding Academic Book):

“An excellent panoramic view of Puerto Ricans in the United States.... Will become the [book] on Puerto Rican studies and a prominent complement to the ethnic studies literature, and well it should.” —Carlos Vargas-Ramos, Contemporary Sociology

“Arguably the deans of Puerto Rican studies, Acosta-Belén and Santiago provide a comprehensive, contemporary portrait of the nearly 8 million Puerto Ricans almost evenly divided between the island itself and across the US mainland and Hawaii.... An accessible one-volume introduction to US Puerto Ricans.” —Choice

Fully revised and expanded to reflect more than a decade of new developments and data, the second edition of this widely acclaimed book presents an up-to-date, comprehensive portrait of the second largest Latino group in the United States.

Edna Acosta-Belén and Carlos Santiago trace the trajectory of the Puerto Rican experience from the early colonial period, through a series of waves of migration to the US, to current cultural legacies and political and social challenges. Their work is an indispensable resource for anyone seeking to understand the history, contributions, and contemporary realities of the ever-growing Puerto Rican diaspora.

Edna Acosta-Belén is Distinguished Professor Emerita and O'Leary Professor at the University at Albany, SUNY. Carlos E. Santiago is commissioner of higher education for the state of Massachusetts; before joining the Department of Education, he was chancellor of the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee and professor in the university's Department of Economics.

Gender Identity, Sexual Orientation, and Sexual Assault: Challenging the Myths

Corina Schulze, Sarah Koon-Magnin, and Valerie Bryan

"Fills an important gap in the literature both in terms of theory and also method."

—Sarah Prior, Gender & Society

"Sexual violence and the myths that surround this epidemic in the US are excellently introduced and explained by Schulze, Koon-Magnin, and Bryan.... Highly recommended." —Choice

The underlying argument of this groundbreaking study is this:
Sexual orientation and gender identity influence how sexual assault is experienced, how it is perceived, and ultimately, how victims (and perpetrators) are treated by the criminal justice system.

Focusing much of their work on the queer community—a community with a disproportionately high risk of sexual assault—the authors introduce the Identity Inclusive Sexual Assault Myth Scale (IISAMS) to explore the unique aspects of sexual assault and the process of disclosure as experienced by queer victims.
They also incorporate participant recommendations, collected during interviews, as they foreground ways for more effectively preventing and responding to sexual violence throughout contemporary society.

Corina Schulze and Sarah Koon-Magnin are associate professors in the Department of Political Science and Criminal Justice at the University of South Alabama. Valerie Bryan is associate professor in the Department of Sociology, Anthropology, and Social Work at the

Gender, Crime, and Justice: Exploring the Dynamics

Andrew Wilczak

"[A]n excellent introduction to the topics of gender, crime, and punishment.... [The] approach is serious but accessible, making the book ideal for undergraduates or students without a lot of background in sociological theory." —Choice

"Discussions are effectively punctuated with just the right amount of thought-provoking questions that lead the uninitiated through the unpacking of difficult concepts....

Issues that are highlighted are especially relevant to the interests of today's college students, and the price is right for class use." —Phoebe Morgan,
Gender & Society

Exactly what role does gender play in crime, and in the criminal justice system?

Addressing this two-part question from the perspective of the offender, the victim, the community, and the overall justice system, Andrew Wilczak provides an accessible introduction to the full range of issues involved.

Notably, this comprehensive text: features an inclusive focus on both men and women; encompasses theory, as well as realities on the ground; challenges students to ask difficult questions; ties concepts to students' own lives; and incorporates an intersectional approach. Designed to simultaneously engage and instruct, the book is ideally suited for classroom use.

Andrew Wilczak is assistant professor of criminology and sociology at Wilkes University.

The Trickle-Up Economy: How We Take from the Poor and Middle Class and Give to the Rich

Mark Mattern

"A significant, and provocative, contribution.... not only logical, systematic, and carefully researched, but also well written and accessible." —Alan W. Cafruny, Hamilton College

One of the most durable myths of US political economy is that we take from the rich and give to the poor—penalizing the rich for their hard work and rewarding the undeserving. Mark Mattern turns that story on its head.

Documenting the everyday, institutionalized ways that income and wealth are transferred upward in the United States, Mattern shows how in fact the bottom subsidizes the top. His provocative analysis, describing in detail the processes and policy choices that systematically favor the rich, is both a tale of "Robin Hood in reverse" and a call for a more equitable, democratic political economy.

Mark Mattern is professor in the Department of Politics and Global Citizenship at Baldwin-Wallace University.

Introducing Social Stratification: The Causes and Consequences of Inequality

Kasturi DasGupta

“This fine book is at the same time comprehensive, incisive, and readily understandable... a rare combination.”

—G. William Domhoff,
University of California, Santa Cruz

“A superb introduction to social inequality and its influence on life chances.”

—Stacye Blount, Fayetteville State University

“Not just another strat textbook. DasGupta’s book hits all three marks: factually comprehensive, theoretically integrated, and written in a very accessible style.”

—Alan Spector, Purdue University Calumet

“DasGupta offers a systematic, data-driven approach to explaining just how unequal US society has become.... Readers will come away from this compelling text with a better understanding of how we got here and alternative scenarios for the future.” —Dana Dunn, University of Texas at Arlington

Does everyone in the US have an equal chance to “make it”? What explains the enduring power of racism and sexism? How does our sociopolitical system generate inequality? These are just a few of the questions explored in this accessible introduction to the complex problem of social stratification.

Kasturi DasGupta clearly explains the social and economic mechanisms that serve to preserve and even deepen social stratification in the US. Enriched with case studies and examples throughout, her text is carefully designed both to engage students and to help them see past cultural myths to grasp the underpinnings and consequences of social inequality.

Kasturi DasGupta is professor emerita of sociology at Georgian Court University.

Hobo Jungle: A Homeless Community in Paradise

Michele Wakin

“Well-researched and well-written.... Highly recommended.” —Choice

“Excellent.... Wakin goes beyond earlier work to explode traditional ideas of how homelessness has been conceptualized.” —J. Talmadge Wright, Loyola University Chicago

For many decades and for many reasons, people who are homeless have chosen to live in camps or other makeshift settings, even when shelters are available. Is this an act of resistance? Of self-preservation? Or are they simply too addicted, too mentally ill, or too criminal to adapt to the rules and regulations of shelter life?

To address these questions, Michele Wakin explores the evolution of unsheltered homelessness through an evocative portrait of a jungle encampment that has endured since the Great Depression in one of the most opulent cities on California’s south coast.

Michele Wakin is professor of sociology at Bridgewater State University.

Ending Homelessness: Why We Haven't, How We Can

Donald W. Burnes and David L. DiLeo, editors

“A comprehensive and in-depth analysis of the complexities of the pervasive social and economic problem of homelessness.”
—Journal of Sociology and Social Welfare

“This must-read book asks how our wealthy nation ended up with a pervasive homelessness problem ... and suggests what we can do to solve it.” —Nan Roman, President and CEO, National Alliance to End Homelessness

“Incredibly useful for understanding the situation we are dealing with and what we are trying to do about it.” —Amy Donley, University of Central Florida

Despite billions of government dollars spent in the attempt, we are no closer than we were three decades ago to solving the problem of homelessness. Why? And what can we do about it?

Tackling these questions, the authors of Ending Homelessness explore the complicated and often dysfunctional relationship between efforts to address homelessness and the realities on the street.

Journeys out of Homelessness: The Voices of Lived Experience

Jamie Rife and Donald W. Burnes, and contributors

“Giving voice to individuals who have experienced homelessness, Rife, Burnes, and their colleagues provide readers with in-depth knowledge of what it means to be homeless in the United States.”

—James Herbert Williams, Arizona State University

“The stories shared in this book challenge our perspectives.... Combined with a thorough examination of laws and policies past, present, and future, they provide a path forward toward real solutions that are nuanced and strategic in their approach, just as the lives lived are. A highly recommended read.”

—Tisha R. Tallman, NAEHCY

“The authors have brought the experience of homelessness to life ... while at the same time integrating its complexity. This book is a must read.”

—Ellen L. Bassuk, founder of C4 Innovations

How do individuals move from being homeless to finding safe, stable, and secure places to live? Can we recreate the conditions that helped them most? What policies are needed to support what worked—and to remove common obstacles?

Addressing these questions, Jamie Rife and Donald Burnes start from the premise that the most important voices in efforts to end homelessness are the ones most often missing from the discussion: the voices of those with lived experience. In Journeys out of Homelessness, they gather the first-person stories of some who have not only survived, but thrived, going on to find positive home situations.

Highlighting what we can learn from these personal stories, Rife and Burnes combine them with in-depth discussions of key themes and issues and point to the shifts necessary in current policy and practice that are essential if we are to effectively respond to a problem that has reached epic proportions.

Jamie Rife is cofounder and head of operations at Purposity, a nonprofit crowd-funding platform that fosters the creation of online networks of support for individuals dealing with poverty and homelessness. Donald W. Burnes is founder of and senior adviser to the Burnes Center on Poverty and Homelessness at the Colorado Center on Law and Poverty.

At Home on the Street: People, Poverty, and a Hidden Culture of Homelessness

Jason Adam Wasserman and Jeffrey Michael Clair

“A revelation.... Wasserman and Clair offer a new way of looking at the diverse people living on the extreme margins of our society. Their rich ethnography confronts popular conceptions of homeless people and situates street homelessness as a choice distinct from living in shelters. Sociologists, service providers, and policymakers—not to mention students of homelessness and poverty—need to read this.” —Michael Rowe, Yale University “Calls attention to the complexities and contradictions of research on homelessness and offers insights about how to think about homelessness in new ways.... The reflections provided by the researchers about their research experiences will be very helpful to students who are learning about fieldwork and ethnographic research.” —Harriett Romo, Teaching Sociology

Jason Wasserman and Jeffrey Clair delve into the complex realities of homelessness to paint a vivid picture of individuals living on the street and of their strategies for daily survival. By exploring the private spaces that those who are homeless create for themselves, as well as their prevailing social mores, the authors explain how well-intentioned policies and programs often only widen the gap between the indigent and mainstream society.

Jason Adam Wasserman is associate professor of biomedical sciences at Oakland University. Jeffrey Michael Clair is associate professor of sociology at the University of Alabama at Birmingham.

My Dog Always Eats First: Homeless People and Their Animals

Leslie Irvine

“Provides crucial insights for anyone interested in a deeper understanding of homelessness [and] human-animal relationships.... Irvine’s book is lively, well-referenced, well-organized, jargon-free, and a worthy read for students, researchers, and policymakers concerned with homelessness.” —Ryan Sheppard, Contemporary Sociology

“Irvine’s research is a refreshing and worthwhile contribution to sociology, and also a heartfelt study of the intense bonds between humans and non-human animals.” —Abigail E. Cameron, Qualitative Sociology

Leslie Irvine breaks new ground in the study of homelessness by investigating the frequently noticed, yet underexplored, role that animals play in the lives of homeless people.

Irvine conducted interviews on street corners, in shelters, even at highway underpasses, to provide insights into the benefits and liabilities that animals have for the homeless. She also weighs the perspectives of social service workers, veterinarians, and local communities. Her work provides a new way of looking at both the meaning of animal companionship and the concept of home itself.

Leslie Irvine is professor of sociology at the University of Colorado at Boulder.

CHOICE OUTSTANDING ACADEMIC BOOK

Confronting Homelessness: Poverty, Politics, and the Failure of Social Policy

David Wagner with Jennifer Barton Gilman

“Not only does a thorough job of outlining the history of homelessness in the United States, but also brings attention to the minimal progress the United States has made in addressing this issue.” —Contemporary Sociology

“An excellent book; one of the best on the topic. Highly recommended.” —Choice

“An excellent overview of the contemporary social problem of homelessness in the United States.... Provides a powerful way of understanding not only homelessness but other social problems as well.”

—Dee Southard,
University of Southern Oregon

Whose fault is homelessness? Thirty years ago the problem exploded as a national crisis, drawing the attention of activists, the media, and policymakers at all levels—yet the homeless population endures to this day, and arguably has grown. David Wagner offers a major reconsideration of homelessness in the US, casting a critical eye on how we as a society respond to crises of inequality and stratification.

David Wagner is professor emeritus of social work and sociology at the University of Southern Maine. Jennifer Barton Gilman is an independent scholar.

Making Sense of Social Problems: New Images, New Issues

Joel Best and Scott R. Harris, editors

“Well suited for an introductory sociology course, particularly one focused on Social Problems.... [It] offers sociology students a wide variety of cases to develop their critical thinking skills.”

—Kyla Walters, Teaching Sociology

Internet addiction. Cell-phone-distracted drivers. Teen suicide. Economic recession. The health risks of trans fats. The carefully selected collection of case studies in Making Sense of Social Problems is designed to help students understand and critically evaluate a wide range of contemporary social issues.

The cases are organized to highlight a series of key elements:

- why “objective” claims deserve critical attention
- how advocates bring attention to issues
- why expert interpretations may change over time
- the role of the media in shaping or distorting concerns
- the consequences of public policy

The introduction, conclusion, and section notes provide a coherent framework for the text. Reflecting the promise of the constructionist approach, the result is a powerful set of tools for systematically investigating social problems. It can be used to advantage as a “stand-alone,” as well as with such texts as Joel Best’s Social Problems.

Joel Best is professor of sociology and criminal justice at the University of Delaware. Scott R. Harris is professor of sociology at Saint Louis University.

Substance Use and Abuse: Exploring Alcohol and Drug Issues

Sylvia I. Mignon, Marjorie Marcoux Faiia, Peter L. Myers, and Earl Rubington

“Accessible and broad, this text provides an up-to-date, comprehensive overview of alcohol- and drug-related issues in the United States.”

—Robert L. Peralta,
University of Akron

“An excellent resource for students.... The authors integrate multidisciplinary perspectives as they contextualize alcohol and other drug problems.”

—Margaret A. Smith,
Keene State College

In this comprehensive introduction to the study of substance use and abuse, the authors explore both the personal and the societal consequences of alcohol and drug problems. A series of provocative chapters also helps students to navigate the unique problems facing women, adolescents, college students, the elderly, racial minorities, and the GLBT community. Trends in diagnosis, treatment, prevention, and policy are all thoroughly covered.

Sylvia I. Mignon is director of the MS in Human Services Program and associate professor of human services and criminal justice at the University of Massachusetts at Boston. Marjorie Marcoux Faiia is professor of sociology and women’s studies at Rivier College. The late Peter L. Myers was director of the Addictions Counselor Training Program at Essex County College. The late Earl Rubington was professor emeritus of sociology at Northeastern University.

The High Life: Club Kids, Harm and Drug Policy

Dina Perrone

“Challenges many of the assumptions about drug users, and will benefit both beginners and professionals interested in drug use and users, public policy, and studies of subculture.” —Contemporary Sociology

“It is beautifully written, the topic sensitively approached, and the theoretical approach sophisticated and wide-ranging.... What we see within this book is a comprehensive account that is nuanced, intimate, and complex and that provides the reader with insights into the role of drugs within the lives of these young people.”

—Geoffrey D. Hunt, Institute for Scientific Analysis

Why do well-educated young professionals engage in frequent and intensive drug use at dance clubs? And how do they protect themselves from drug-related illnesses and involvement with the criminal justice system? Dina Perrone’s vivid ethnographic research on New York City “club kids” illuminates their distinctive subculture, describes their patterns of drug use, and explores the factors that protect them from harm.

Dina Perrone is associate professor of criminology and criminal justice at California State University, Long Beach.

Dorm Room Dealers: Drugs and the Privileges of Race and Class

A. Rafik Mohamed and Erik D. Fritsvold

“This fascinating book shows how discriminatory enforcement continues to structure efforts to reduce the US drug problem.” —Alex Stevens, Drugs

“The authors effectively challenge many of the racial assumptions about America’s drug war by focusing on the middle- and upper-class dealers who operate ‘in plain sight’ of anti-drug laws in spaces of privilege.” —Joseph O. Jewell, Ethnic and Racial Studies

“Compellingly demonstrates that college drug dealers, who are mostly white and middle-class, are not subject to the same constraints as typical, street-level dealers.” —Heith Copes, University of Alabama at Birmingham

Why do affluent, upwardly mobile college students—who have everything to lose and little to gain—choose to sell drugs? Why do law enforcement officers largely overlook drug dealing on college campuses? With rich, lively details, A. Rafik Mohamed and Erik Fritsvold deliver unprecedented insight into the world of college drug dealers—and offer an important corrective to the traditional distorted view of the US drug trade as primarily involving poor minorities.

A. Rafik Mohamed is professor of sociology and dean of social and behavioral sciences at California State University, San Bernardino. Erik D. Fritsvold is associate professor of sociology at the University of San Diego.

Learning to Live with Statistics: From Concept to Practice

David Asquith

“Very clear.... The well-posed problems are indicative of the chapter material.... Provides a good comprehensive introduction to the subject for liberal arts, education, and social science undergraduates and graduate students.” —Choice

“Thorough and accessible.... The straightforward explanations and emphasis on practical applications are well designed to help students learn the subject.”

—Francis Neely, San Francisco State University

“Combining ‘big picture’ and technical discussions, and providing numerous examples that will help students to understand statistical concepts, this introductory text will appeal to a wide audience.” —Mary C. Noonan, University of Iowa

Is it possible to demystify statistics? Can math phobia be overcome? Perhaps surprisingly, the answer is yes. Learning to Live with Statistics, based on years of teaching experience, explains basic statistical concepts and procedures in a straightforward, digestible way.

Using familiar examples that highlight the relevance of the subject to everyday life, David Asquith provides clear guidelines for defining statistical problems and choosing the right tools for solving them. The result is a student-friendly text that explains how to do statistics, and how to understand the results.

Practice exercises illustrate each of the techniques covered, and answers are provided for more than half of the exercises. The text also includes reference tables and a glossary.

David Asquith is professor emeritus of sociology at San Jose State University.
